

MAKE A JOY-O-METRE

First, think about things you don't like. It might be icky wet socks or yucky soggy cookies. Put those things in the first box.

Next, think about what you think is just okay. Maybe it's getting up early on cold mornings or sweeping up pine needles. That goes in the second section.

Now the fun things. What do you like? Is it snuggly jumpers or cosy slippers? Maybe it's hot chocolate or Christmas movies? Those things go in the third section.

Finally, it's time to think about things that are super awesome and that you absolutely love. For Clara, it's snowball fights and reindeer cuddles. Nick likes building snowmen and ticking everything off his lists. How about you? Put that in this last box.

All that's left to do is to colour in each section of the Joy-O-Meter. You could also draw an arrow to show how you're feeling now or maybe you could make your own arrow and stick it on using a split pin. Have fun!
